Cargo

Finding simplicity in a complex world

Cargo is one of the oldest forms of insurance. But since those early days, the world has become a much more complicated place. Today, goods are perpetually on the move: packed into containers, loaded onto ships; taken over the ocean, through customs, across borders and into warehouses; from there it is put onto trains and trucks to be stored in warehouses before final delivery. During that time, anything could happen to your goods. They may be damaged by storm or fire, they may be stolen or mishandled, or they may simply get delayed.

We understand your cargo risks

We understand the risks you run in your business. As a result, we can tailor our terms and conditions to suit your specific needs.

A dangerous misconception

Some cargo owners expect that any losses incurred will be paid by their logistic service providers (such as road hauliers, ship-owners, airlines or warehouse keepers). But this is a dangerous misconception: the liability of these providers is limited by local law or conventions. Under certain circumstances, they are not liable at all.

We therefore advise cargo owners to take out their own separate cargo insurance to ensure that, if necessary, the full value of the cargo can be collected.

Dedicated team

Spread across our European offices, we have a large team of dedicated underwriters and claim handlers. By working in close cooperation with our colleagues, we can offer in-house solutions for Charterers' Liability and Cargo Owners' Legal Liability. Thanks to our experience and in-depth knowledge of the market, we are able to offer swift, tailored solutions on competitive but realistic terms and conditions.

The scale of our service

- Project cargo, including delay in start-up
- War on land
- Transport/mounting risks
- Inherent vice
- Rejection
- Stand-alone storage

All shapes and sizes

We provide cover for large, complex multinationals as well as small and medium-sized enterprises. Most contracts are written on a primary basis and cover the full value of the insured interest.

Signs of the times

- War and Political Risks. In today's world, where war, violence and political unrest are reported every day, this instability can constitute a significant risk for cargo owners. Traditional Cargo All-risk policies either exclude cover for War and Political Risks or have only a very limited offer. Thanks to our dedicated War team, we can offer full cover for War and Political Risks.
- Shipping casualties. The steadily increasing age profile of bulk carriers is leading to a higher number of shipping casualties. The older the vessel, the greater the risk of leaking hedges, sinking and general average, affecting overall cargo loss. We support our clients by providing cargo risk assessments, warehouse inspections and vessel screenings through our Client Service Desk. This enables us to determine whether a vessel is fit for purpose and helps in identifying risks before claims arise.

E-certificates

Our online system for e-certificates speeds up processing, reduces paperwork, and provides 24/7 worldwide access to authorised customers for the issue of secure cargo certificates.
